by Mark Palermo

My Life In Low Budget Filmmaking is a memoir by independent filmmaker Mark Palermo. The book chronicles Mark's journey from his early days as a struggling filmmaker to his eventual success as an award-winning director. Along the way, Mark shares his insights on the challenges and rewards of low-budget filmmaking.

Mark's journey began in the early 1990s, when he dropped out of college to pursue his dream of becoming a filmmaker. With no money and no connections, Mark started making short films on his own. He quickly learned the challenges of low-budget filmmaking, but he also discovered the freedom and creativity that it allowed him.

Over the years, Mark's films have screened at festivals around the world and won numerous awards. He has also directed several feature films, including the critically acclaimed "The Last Broadcast" (2009) and "The Gracefield Incident" (2014).

In My Life In Low Budget Filmmaking, Mark shares his hard-earned wisdom on how to make great films on a shoestring budget. He covers everything from writing and directing to cinematography and editing. He also offers advice on how to stay motivated and never give up on your dreams.

My Life In Low Budget Filmmaking is an inspiring and practical guide for aspiring filmmakers of all levels. Mark's passion for filmmaking is evident on every page, and his insights are invaluable. Whether you're just starting out or you're a seasoned pro, you'll find something to learn from My Life In Low Budget Filmmaking.
