The book is divided into four sections. The first section, "The Global Turn in Design History," examines the ways in which globalization has changed the way we think about design history. The second section, "National Design Histories in a Global Context," explores the specific ways in which globalization has affected the design histories of different countries and regions. The third section, "Design and the Global South," examines the role of design in the global South, and the ways in which it has been shaped by globalization. The fourth section, "Design and the Future," looks at the future of design history in an age of globalization.

This book is a valuable resource for anyone interested in design history, globalization, or the future of design. It provides a comprehensive overview of the field, and it offers a unique perspective on the ways in which globalization is shaping the design histories of different countries and regions.
